

Directions for Restoring Persons Apparently Dead from Drowning.

I. Lose no time. Carry out these directions on the spot.
 II. Remove the froth and mucus from the mouth and nostrils.
 III. Hold the body, for a few seconds only, with the head hanging down, so that the water may run out of the lungs and windpipe.
 IV. Loosen all tight articles of clothing about the neck and chest.
 V. See that the tongue is pulled forward, if it falls back into the throat. By taking hold of it with a handkerchief it will not slip.
 VI. If the breathing has ceased, or nearly so, it must be stimulated by pressure of the chest with the hands, in imitation of the natural breathing; forcibly expelling the air from the lungs, and allowing it to re-enter and expand them by the elasticity of the ribs. Remember that this is the most important part of all.
 To do it readily, lay the person on his back with a cushion, pillow, or some firm substance under the shoulders; then press with the flat of the hands over the lower part of the breastbone and the upper part of the abdomen, keeping up a regular repetition and relaxation of pressure twenty or thirty times a minute. A pressure of thirty pounds may be applied with safety to a grown person.
 VII. Rub the limbs with the hands, or with dry cloths, constantly, to aid the circulation and keep the body warm.
 VIII. As soon as the person can swallow, give a table-spoonful of spirits in hot water, or some warm tea or coffee.
 IX. Work deliberately. Do not give up too quickly. Success has rewarded the efforts of hours.

A Constitutional Convention.

The last Legislature of Nevada proposed an amendment to the Constitution, changing the beginning of the fiscal year from the first day of January in each year, to the first day of December. This is for the convenience of State officers, to enable them to make their annual reports before the meeting of the Legislature. The question is to be submitted to the qualified electors of the State at the next general election. The Legislature also recommended the electors at the next election for members of the Legislature to vote for, or against the calling of a convention for the purpose of revising the Constitution. This proposition will also be submitted to the people in November, and it remains for them to decide whether the convention shall be called. Conventions of that character are somewhat expensive, and if the bonanza men succeed in electing a Legislature favorable to the repeal of the tax on the net proceeds of mines, it would fall heavily on the other taxpayers of the State.—Silver State.

At the Centennial of the Philadelphia ladies cry out, "Isn't it cunning?" New York ladies, "How superbly lovely!" Boston ladies, "Ah, how exquisite!" Louisville ladies, "Be-utiful, fo' shmah!" Chicago ladies, "Oh my—I wish I owned that!" while the genuine Yankee girls from the rural districts exclaim, "Gee-whimminy, but ain't that 'ere a stunner, neow!"

The sale of Circassian girls to Turks continues. A correspondent of the London Times says that a Moslem dealer makes choice of four young, unsophisticated girls, imports them to Constantinople, sells them, and then goes back for more. If he can achieve four such trips in a year he can make a good living out of sixteen women. Many of the Circassians are settled in Turkey, and there actually breed children for sale, having no more shame about it than a fashionable English mother may feel about bringing out her girls for the matrimonial market.

THE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION.

Continuation and Conclusion of the Description of the Mineral Exhibit at Philadelphia—A Letter Well Worth Reading.

PHILADELPHIA, July 19, 1876.

EDITOR JOURNAL:—Continuing our examination of the mineral exhibits in the Main Building, we find in the U. S. section that quite a number of displays have been made by individuals, firms and corporations, which represent no particular State or section of country. The Pennsylvania Salt Manufacturing Co. makes a fine display of

CRYOLITE
 From Greenland with the products of its manufacture, soda and alumina salts. An immense mass of alum, which weighs 9 tons, looks very pretty. This has been crystallized in an oblong tank and after being removed from the tank a hole has been cut through the outer crust which shows the beautiful translucent crystals in rhedrons, cubes, dodecahedrons and combinations of these forms, as if in a cave. A number of manufacturing chemists display the products of their art with the material on which they operate.

MARBLE CUTTERS

Exhibit magnificent samples of their handiwork and the skilled artisan who works in slate, granite sandstone and serpentine displays the cunning of his craft in numberless designs from various localities. Iron and steel manufacturers show the crude material with which they work and thousands of useful and fancy articles, the perfection of their trade. Enterprising dealers have also managed to lug in here samples of "king coal, the mighty hero of the mine," coke and composition fuel. The potteries of Trenton, N. J., and other localities make handsome displays of crockery and earthen ware, as well as the material used in their manufacture.

Then we are exhibitors of the crude materials and articles made of silver, lead, nickel, cobalt and phosphorus. From different localities there are samples of the minerals found thereon accompanied with statistics showing their extent and value. It would require a very long letter to describe all these, besides it would not be at all interesting. Mr. Hatch, of San Francisco, has an exhibition of a countless number of bits of ore from the

PACIFIC COAST

And Mexico. His collection is of little value, however, except for what might be gotten out of it by putting it through a quartz mill. He has certainly displayed a great deal of energy and expended considerable labor in getting his collection together, but his work has been thrown away. His time might have been more profitably employed in some less pretentious occupation. His display is not attractive—a pile of ore would receive more attention, instead of being admired at all. It serves to create in the minds of those capable of judging such exercises a feeling of pity and commiseration for the man. Indeed one of the members of the Board of Awards from Mr. Hatch had been deceived by the merits of his exhibit, and the belief that Mr. H. was a sound mind. We have taken occasion here to speak of this Hatch exhibition for the reason that it is a type of a hundred just such collections which we have seen in Nevada California and upon which owners place a very high value. Specimens piled up in cases without labels, no classification and unlabelled are of no value to anyone of very little interest to the collectors usually do not care one stone from another, but as they work for their payment no one need find fault, however, they attempt, Hatch, to open the eyes of with admiration and wonder, then in like manner they themselves criticized.

State of New Jersey makes large and attractive mineral in this section of the building collection was made and exhibited by the Geological Survey.

THE TEXAS PACIFIC RAILROAD

Also makes a good exhibit of the different minerals found on the line of that road. The specimens have been arranged and labelled by Mr. A. E. Foote. Mr. Foote has also on exhibition a fine display of minerals from his own private collection, consisting chiefly of finely crystals and rare minerals from all parts of the world. Some crystals of Amazon stone in this collection from Colorado are the largest and finest to be found in the whole exhibition. In our haste to get through taking notes on the mineral exhibit in the main building for our last letter we missed seeing a very interesting exhibit of

OPALS

From Hungary. The collection is a private one and belongs to Louis A. Goldschmidt. There are about 30 specimens which show all the different forms of crystallization peculiar to this mineral. The largest opal in the world is here. It weighs 602 carats and is valued at $25,000. Two cameos are cut in opal, one of them is the head of the Emperor of Austria. This is surrounded by a setting of emeralds, rubies and diamonds, which show the three national colors, green, red and white, the other one is the head of the Empress and is surrounded by a beautiful setting of diamonds. The head of the Emperor is in a lady's bracelet and that of the Empress is in a locket. This collection of opals received first prize medals at exhibitions in France, Roumania, Austria and Sweden. Going across the main aisle now, the Mexican exhibit is the first one found after leaving the sections of the United States. The leading interest of this country is her mines, consequently the principal exhibit which she makes here is that of her minerals and she does make a fine display of them. This is the only foreign country exhibiting silver ores which can in any propriety lay claim to rivalry with Nevada. When we consider that from the conquest by Cortez in 1521 up to the present time about $12,000,000,000 in silver have been produced there, we need not be at all surprised at her claim. Near the entrance to this department the first thing to be seen is an immense

CAKE OF SILVER,

Which weighs 4,002 lbs and is valued at $72,000. It has the appearance of having been run out from a furnace, when in a molten state, into a hole in the ground and there allowed to cool off. There is perhaps nothing in the whole exhibition which attracts as much attention as this mass of silver. Every visitor is sure to see it before he leaves. Most of the specimens exhibited here are from the National Museum at the city of Mexico. Of the precious stones, here is the ruby, opal, topaz, amethyst, garnet, agate and chalcodony. The minerals are silver, copper, gold, iron, antimony, zinc, lead, sulphur, arsenic and cobalt. There are also several private collections which show quite as great a variety of silver ores and other minerals as can be found in Nevada. Here is a great lump of meteoric iron from Chihuahua which weighs 4,000 lbs., some fine specimens of obsidian and two exhibits which show all the transformations that the ores undergo before the silver is extracted. Then there are specimens illustrative of the geology of the country, and some fine samples of building stones. But by far the prettiest feature in the Mexican mineral department is the display of marble. Some of the specimens are washed onyx and others of the same mineral are marked marble. We are inclined to think the mineral is neither the one nor the other, but what is known as oriental alabaster. But no matter whether it is onyx, marble or alabaster, it takes a fine polish, is almost translucent, and is of a variegated amber color. Some of the articles manufactured from this mineral, such as table tops, vases, etc., rival in beauty those made from the famous Russian malachite, lapis lazuli and rhodonite, and were it not for the prices marked on the different articles for sale we should have thought them quite as valuable. The price of an immense block, which weighs several tons and out of which a great many table tops might be made, is only $270 gold.

In the department of the

NETHERLANDS

Are exhibited some specimens of topaz, a fine large mass of malachite.

cedony, tourmalines, stalactites, building stones, coal, kaolin, a large number of topaz pebbles, gold dust, and diamond bearing sands in which can be seen one rough diamond of the value of $13,000. Then there is also diamond gravel with the diamonds after washing. On account of the many precious stones and rare crystals contained in the

BRAZILIAN COLLECTION,

It is by far the most valuable one on exhibition.

CANADA

Makes the largest mineral exhibit in the Main Building. The greater portion of her collection was made and has been arranged by the Geological Survey of that country. It comprises specimens of gold, silver, copper, iron, lead and graphite ores, building stones, statuary marble, cement, gypsum, roofing slates, slates in frames for the school room, which reminds one of his youthful days, some very large amethyst crystals and large quantities of coal from different mines. The collection is well arranged and labelled and is quite interesting to visitors.

SWEDEN

Has a large collection of iron ores and also a great variety of articles manufactured from that mineral, a number of models of blast furnaces, geological maps of different sections of that country, and one case filled with some good geological specimens of uniform size. Norway exhibits specimens of nickel ores and of the eruptive rocks nicely dressed, the contents of pot holes, and giant kettles, crystallizations of enstatite newly discovered in that country, also specimens of the geological strata, and geological maps, one map showing the direction and intersection of the dykes at Christiania. The finest specimens of

WIRE SILVER

In the whole exhibition are exhibited by Norway.

New South Wales makes a large and interesting exhibit of her mineral resources. The specimens are very nicely arranged in paste-board boxes similar to those used in the Nevada State cabinet at Carson. The mineral exhibit is the principal feature of this country's display. It consists chiefly of gold, tin and copper ores. There is a large number of samples of stream tin from various localities and some beautiful specimens of lode tin showing the natural crystals of that mineral. There are also specimens of tourmaline, topaz, manganese and rose quartz, serpentine, chromate of iron, white clay, mispickel, argentiferous galena, tin crystals in quartz, obsidian, molybdenite, mica, feldspar, stream tin in pipe clay, calamine, hornblende in quartz, auriferous calc-spar, magnetite, volcanic bombs, zircons, diamonds from the Gwydir river, the number of diamonds found in this country is estimated at between 5000 and 6000, the largest 5 1/2 carats, sapphires from Oban and Newcastle. In one of the cases there are about 50 small glass jars filled with gold dust and nuggets characteristic of the gold fields. Then there are about 100 large ingots of refined tin from Moore & Co's mine situated at Tegetable creek near Glen Innes. The average yield from this mine is between 500 and 600 tons per annum. A large square gold column gilded neatly represents the quantity of gold raised from 1851 to 1874, total weight 205,232,598 oz., value £30,536,245, 10/6. In this display are two pyramids of copper bars. Several cases are filled with auriferous and stanniferous wash tailings. Specimens of fossils, fossil fauna and flora of the coal measures, samples of geological formations, a portion a rich tin vein showing the mode of occurrence of the veins in granite, blocks of marble, sandstone and granite nicely polished. Two cases are filled with samples of the different varieties of copper ores. There are fine samples of bituminous and cannel coal, quartz crystals, asbestos, dendrites, and stalactite iron ore. Block sand with gold zircons, auriferous tin ore and magnetic iron. There are here a large number of

PHOTOGRAPHIC VIEWS

Of different places and one large panoramic view of Sydney harbor and suburbs. New Zealand has on exhibition at the entrance of that department a handsome glass case filled with specimens of gold bearing quartz, nuggets of alluvial gold obtained by washing the sand and gravel of the

of this gum were exported valued at $140,000. Half a dozen long glass tubes 2 inches in diameter are filled with samples of the varnish. There is also a good collection of the woods of that country, polished and varnished.

Tasmania displays some good specimens of iron and tin ores with about 30 large ingots of refined tin, a box of gum of the Oyster bay pine, samples of coal, petrified wood, pipe clay, sienna and amber earths, slates, marbles and native woods. The chief exports from this country are wool, whale oil and bone, different sorts of bark, provisions, and kangaroo skins.

Queensland has a very large and well arranged collection of her minerals. One case contains specimens of gold bearing quartz, one of the specimens shows opal in gold, another is placed in position so as to be seen through a magnifying glass, they are all large and about as rich as any to be seen at the exhibit on. Another case contains about 30 samples of gold dust in glass vials and a number of fine samples of precious opal on brown iron ore, stream tin, and crystals of magnetic, chromic and specular iron. Then there are some large specimens of gold bearing pyrites and a great slab of malachite, quite as pretty as those from Russia, a fine lot of copper ingots, an attraction exhibit of the ores of antimony with samples of the star regulus, a great variety of trap, granite, metamorphic, carboniferous and cretaceous rocks, also samples of the soils derived from desert sandstones and Queensland earths, a large pile of block tin, a tall column represents the gold exported from 1868 to 1875, over 65 tons and valued at $35,000,000. The Queensland collection of woods surpasses any other on the grounds and one of the most attractive displays to be found in any department is that of about 200 pictures in this country's exhibit. These are not photographs, but real paintings, showing the colors of the different objects and everything as it naturally appears. They are hung around the walls of the enclosure and represent landscapes, rural scenes, different kinds of farms with the price of each per acre printed under the picture, boys, rivers, cities, railroads, mines and mining scenes. The pictures are all neatly framed and gives one a very good knowledge of life in Australia.

Italy makes no pretension in the way of exhibiting her minerals. An Italian dealer in mosaics, however, has on exhibition a case which contains samples of the stones used in that art. These are breccia, alabasters, serpentine, gabbro, malachite, lapis lazuli, corallo, porporino, verde, diaspro, shells, etc. This country's display of mosaics is superb, but we shall not now attempt any description of them. This completes our description of the mineral exhibits at the Centennial, perhaps a few have been missed, but certainly not one of much importance has escaped our observation, so that any one who has or may read our letters on this subject will have a very good idea of what there is to be seen in this department of the exhibition.

Fillingstering—Indian Problem—Etc.

WASHINGTON, August 2.

There was an animated struggle in the House to-day between the supporters and opponents of Bland's Silver Legal-tender bill, which came up as the regular order during the morning hour.

Kasson made a proposition to Bland to allow the discussion to run on during the remainder of the day and to hold its place in the morning hour to-morrow, or to let the bill go over to the next session, so as to give the Currency Committee an opportunity to examine the silver question thoroughly.

Bland would not agree to this unless the opponents of the bill would pledge themselves not to filibuster to-morrow. He demanded the previous question on the passage of the bill, thus preventing any debate.

The yeas and nays were ordered on both motions, and thus the bill cannot be acted on to-day, the two votes consuming the entire morning

Small-pox.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2. The scene at the Health office this morning reminded the observer of the panic on California street, when the Bank of California suspended, except in the composition of the attendant throng. The rooms devoted to the business of the office were packed with screaming children, tired and cross, and women and impatient men. The crowd stopped over on to the sidewalk and the street rendering access to the building difficult. The parallel might be continued further, as about noon the office suspended operations, the run on the establishment having exhausted the supply of Virus on hand. Upon notices being given to that effect the disappointed applicants, after discussing the matter in groups for a while, gradually dispersed. The rush to-day exceeds all previous occasions. The United States Government seems to have caught the infection of alarm, as the Postmaster this morning addressed a communication to the Health officer declining to deliver any more letters at the Health office on account of exposing the carriers to the contagion. Seventeen cases and three deaths were reported yesterday, and seven cases and three deaths this morning. A panic on a Bush street car this morning was occasioned by the entrance of a woman broken out with a first class case of small pox. She was on her way to admittance to the pest-house. The passengers, with ready sympathy granted her exclusive use of the car. Barmodis, the quack who reported a case of small-pox as scarlet fever was to day sentenced to pay a fine of $500 or spend 250 days in the County Jail. Failing to furnish the money, he was locked up.

Truckee Meadows.—From Mr. A. A. Longley, of Truckee Meadows, who was in Virginia City yesterday, the Enterprise learns several important items. He said the storm a few days ago caused immense damage to the hay crop. Much hay was out when the rain of Friday—week before last—occurred. Then followed three or four days of alternate showers and sunshine; the weather in the intervals between the showers was that close sultry kind of weather so well known in the East, under which crops which have been cut and left exposed in the fields will perish faster than under a storm. Mr. Longley estimates the loss in hay at several hundred tons. In regard to the army worms, he says they are working in the most unaccountable way. They attack one field and leave the next, but where they are, no green thing is left. Alfalfa cut many weeks since has not grown a particle; or, rather, the pests have destroyed every leaf as fast as it has formed. They could be destroyed by flooding the ground for three or four days, but that would destroy the clover also, and so the farmers prefer to let them alone, hoping that their operations will be confined to this year, and that they will not eat up the alfalfa roots so that they will not grow next year. Army worms are old enemies to Truckee Meadows. We have seen there in the old days, about a million to the square inch—more or less.

PIONEER PICNIC.—Remember the Pioneer Picnic on Saturday next. Tickets are for sale at all the public places in the town. Two dollars and a half covers the entire cost of railroad fare and admission to the grounds. Three cars have been chartered for Reno excursionists but more will be provided if necessary. The picnic grounds are at Treadway's ranch, near Carson.

FUNERAL.—The remains of Dr. McMeans, who died so suddenly last Monday night, will be interred in Virginia this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The Masons, Pioneers, Fire Department, Mexican Veterans, National Guard and other associations and the National Guard band will act as an escort. Mr. DeLong will deliver the eulogy. The feeling of grief is profound in Virginia to-day, where he was so well known and respected.

these: The existence of the ledges have been known almost ever since the whites have lived in Nevada, but their very prominence was against them, for people naturally concluded they were not worth anything and so paid no attention to them. We learn that a prominent owner in one of the Peavine mines herded stock among these ledges for several seasons, little imagining that he was treading over such good rock. Dr. S. Bishop, of this place, who by the way had considerable to do with mining before this time, was called to attend a lady who was sick near Pyramid Lake. While there he espied a piece of rock on a table, which upon examination seemed to look pretty fair. He asked where it came from. These large ledges were shown him, and he thought enough of the specimen to bring it to Reno and have it assayed. The result was so good that he immediately repaired to the spot and located 1500 feet, or what he christened the Monarch. His success attracted others and the discovery came into prominence immediately. The favorable looks in the tunnel they are running in the infant has divided the attention between the two points. Nearly the entire district is owned by Reno men, who have sufficient confidence in it to spend their money freely in developing the mines. If they succeed in getting something good there it will be a great help to Reno, directly by its own trade and by the stimulus it will give other districts.

Town sites have been located in both Pyramid City and Cold Spring, but beyond a few buildings actually needed the towns are not built up yet. Plenty of good water is to be had, particularly at Cold Spring, where a large spring which gives its name to the place is situated.

Everything at this new camp looks well. Prospecting goes bravely on, with encouraging indications constantly appearing.

The Infant Co. is running its tunnel day and night, two shifts. The rock, which has been pretty hard, is now soft enough to enable them to run five feet a day. The length of the tunnel is something over 200 feet, and is 400 feet from the surface perpendicularly. The rock continues to improve. It was the intention to hunt right against the edge of the ledge, but owing to its pitching or some error in the calculation they find themselves drifting parallel with it on the west. Indications go to show that they are about 30 feet from it. A crosscut will be started in a few days to cut it.

B. B. Norton sent out a lot of tools to commence work on his claim yesterday morning. This claim was located on Sunday last. An assay of $351 has been made on this location.

A test of 20 assays on one claim there gave an average of $315, with a maximum of $365. These figures need no comment, and that they were fair we know for the assays were made by different assayers in this State.

The force of workmen is being constantly augmented as developments are made. The attention of capitalists is being attracted to the district, and they are beginning to give substantial aid in its development.

The Georgia Minstrels played to a large, appreciative audience last night. The show was immense.

The Flying Gallery will return to Reno during the State Fair. Wait and get good pictures cheap.

GRAY & ISAACS, the rulers and regulators of prices of the dry goods trade in Reno, are doing an immense business in their new store on Virginia street, next door to Beck & Co., and opposite their old stand. This wide-awake young firm has revolutionized the dry goods trade in Reno, and intend maintaining their great popularity, if low prices and fair dealings will accomplish it. They have extraordinary facilities for purchasing goods, and are daily in receipt of the latest novelties known to the European and American trade. Ladies will save money by patronizing this energetic young house, for not only have they convinced the entire population of Reno that they have sold goods lower than the same could be bought in San Francisco, but are determined to still continue to run in the same channel. Notwithstanding the enormous advance in the price of Calico, they still continue to sell 16 yards for $1. Special reduction in black silks and carpets. Ladies just step into the "Centennial" and feast your eyes on the magnificent stock of goods, as your true friends, Gray & Isaacs, will always be pleased to show you their complete assortment of goods, whether you want to buy or not.

Don't Read This!—If you do you will find that you can buy building lots better and in higher state of cultivation than any found in Reno, by calling on Stephen Conner, at the Nursery.

PENMANSHIP.—Prof. J. Back, from Sacramento, will open a Writing Academy on Monday at the school house. Day class will begin at 3 o'clock. Evening class, 8 P. M. Many will remember that Professor Buok taught a class here about three years ago. He comes among us highly recommended, and we bespeak him a good attendance. All who wish to acquire a good hand writing should not fail to improve the opportunity.

FIRE INSURANCE.—Parties desiring insurance against loss by fire will find it to their advantage to call upon J. K. Everett, at Larcombe's store, corner Second and Sierra streets. Reno, Nev. Policies obtained at low rates in the following first-class companies: Home Mutual of California; Faneuil Hall of Boston, and Mississippi Valley of Tennessee.

FOR SALE.—A large fine pair of blood mares, and a 3 1/2 inch axle wagon. Apply the Stephen Conner, at the nursery.

MR. JACOB PRESCOTT is our only authorized agent in Reno for the sale of the celebrated new style Florence Sewing Machine.
